

KATOWICE DECLARATION
Adopted by the Fifth World Conference on Doping in Sport
Katowice, Poland, 7 November 2019

Condemning the practice of doping in sport, in violation of the principles and rules of the World Anti-Doping Code (Code) and other international instruments, and its detrimental impact on the integrity and spirit of sport, the health and well-being of athletes, the educational value of sport for youth, and the fairness of sports competitions;

Acknowledging that 20 years after the creation of the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA), substantial progress has been achieved in the fight against doping in sport, namely widespread adoption of the rules, governance reforms, enhanced compliance, increased re-analysis of samples, development of intelligence and investigative capacity, increased awareness and education, and advances in science and medicine;

Convinced that the 2021 version of the Code and International Standards will continue to drive further progress;

Aware of the increasingly sophisticated strategies and technologies used to illegitimately enhance sport performance;

Recognizing the negative impact of doping scandals and the subsequent actions taken by WADA and its stakeholders to strengthen the global anti-doping program;

Highlighting that the issue of doping in sport is complex and can only be confronted by the uncompromising commitment of all stakeholders toward the implementation of a multipronged strategy;
Stressing that enhanced cooperation, cohesion, and collaboration amongst anti-doping stakeholders is fundamental to the fight against doping in sport;

Emphasizing that the Olympic and Sports Movement, Governments, Anti-Doping Organizations, and intergovernmental organizations, together with WADA, have complementary roles and responsibilities to fight doping in sport and protect clean athletes, and that all stakeholders need to intensify their joint efforts;

Welcoming the increased funding provided to WADA by the Sports Movement and by Governments;

Calling upon all organizations that benefit from clean sport, including private sector organizations, professional leagues, and university sport to support and contribute to the fight against doping in sport;

Encouraged by the growing engagement of athletes in the fight against doping in sport; and

Affirming that to foster a clean sport environment, all individuals, bodies, and organizations involved in sport should have appropriate anti-doping education to preserve the spirit of sport, promote the values of sport and ultimately protect all athletes, so that an athlete's first experience is through education rather than doping control.
