

CHECKLIST: Implementing Revised List

Develop a plan to raise awareness about the revised List including:

- Any changes; and
- How you will share the revised List within your organization as well as with those you are responsible for.

1

Remember – you have about three months to communicate the changes to your stakeholders from the time the revised List is published on 1 October on the World Anti-Doping Agency's (WADA's) Web site to these changes coming into effect.

Ensure that you have a copy of the revised List ideally in your native language.

- The List is available on WADA's Web site at minimum in English, French and Spanish.
- Additional languages are added to WADA's Web site when available.
- Check with other Anti-Doping Organizations (ADOs) that may have already translated the List in a language that you need.
- If the List is not available in your languages, you should have it professionally translated.

Ensure that relevant staff/personnel have a copy of the revised List and have reviewed it.

4

Ensure that the revised List is available on your Web site in a location where it can be easily be found.

5

Review and update material related to Therapeutic Use Exemptions (TUEs) to ensure they reflect any changes to the List.

6

Inform your TUE Committee (TUEC) of the changes to the List, provide them with a copy and explain any possible impact on the TUE process.
